We understand that there are questions about this topic. Many of your questions can be answered here.

Teaching And Academic Resources

Math behind the pandemic, virology and biology, journalism and asking hard ethical questions are among the topics covered in this article from Edutopia. Much of this information would be especially applicable to middle and senior high grade students.

National Geographic is providing curriculum for grades K-2 that includes geography, science and social studies. It is available here.

April is National Poetry Month, and there are many ways to incorporate poetry into your curriculum.

“Now, as we face an unprecedented circumstance, National Poetry Month has taken on new meaning and importance. More and more people are turning to poetry at this moment, because poetry and inspiring language can help bring solace and needed strength.” (Taken from the website of The Academy of American Poets)

Visit the link above for many classroom resources, including ways to incorporate poetry in your classroom, virtual readings and much more. In addition, neaTODAY has an article, “The Calming Effect of Poetry in Uncertain Times” that has resources for Poetry Month.
